The statement printf("%d", scanf("%d%d", &a, &b)); is a combination of the printf and scanf functions in C.

Scanf("%d%d", &a, &b) is a scanf statement that reads two integers from the standard input (usually the keyboard). It expects the user to enter two integers separated by whitespace (such as spaces or newlines).

printf("%d", ...) is a printf statement that prints an integer.